Departure by bike. Itinerary Villars-Leysin via Col de la Croix, Les Voëttes and La Comballaz

Col de la Croix and the little secret roads

The day begins with the Col de la Croix (1778 metres), a favourite climb for local cyclists, which also saw the Tour de France pass through in 2022. At the summit, you can admire the Col du Pillon and the imposing Massif des Diablerets in the distance.

Then it's on to Leysin, the town that will host the queen stage of the Tour de Romandie in 2024. To get there, we'll be taking mountain roads away from the traffic: a privilege that the Vaud Alps offer to road cyclists with a passion for the mountains.
